PREVIEW REPORT

IRELAND - FIJI

2024 AUTUMN NATIONS SERIES

ROUND 4

23/11/2024

IRELAND vs FIJI

2024 AUTUMN NATIONS SERIES

OPTA FACTS

- Ireland have won each of their previous five Test matches against Fiji, scoring 5+ tries in four of those games; Ireland's last two games against Fiji have been won by fewer than 20 points after each of the first three had come by 35+ point margins.
- Ireland have alternated between wins and losses across their last seven Test matches (W4 L3), winning their most recent (22-19 v Argentina) – five of Ireland's last six Tests have been decided by margins of a converted try or less.
- Ireland have won 20 of their last 21 Test matches on home soil (L1), however, their sole loss during that period came earlier this month against Oceanic opposition (13-23 v New Zealand) – Ireland haven't lost two matches in Dublin in a calendar year since 2013 (L3).
- Fiji have won six of their last seven Test matches (L1), including each of their last two despite trailing at half-time on both occasions – overall, the Flying Fijians have won seven Tests in 2024, already their second most in a calendar year, only behind 1999 (8).
- Fiji have won three of their last four Test matches against European sides (L1), including each of their last two, however, the Pacific Islanders have never won three in a row against such opposition.
- Ireland have conceded both the fewest 22 entries per match (6.8) and the fewest points per entry (1.7) of any men's Tier 1 Test side in 2024, while Fiji conceded the fewest entries per game (7.3) and the fewest points per entry (1.8) of any team in this year's Pacific Nations Cup.
- Ireland have moved the ball beyond the first receiver on a higher share of their attacking phases than any other side in men's Tier 1 rugby in 2024 (31%) and opted to attack the openside of the pitch from a higher percentage of their phases than any other team in the last round of Autumn Nations Series fixtures (96%).
- Fiji stole 28% of their opponents' lineouts in this year's Pacific Nations Cup, the best rate of any team, and stole three in their Test against Spain last week; Ireland won 21% of opposition lineouts during the Six Nations this year, the highest rate of any side, and had the joint best success rate on their own throw (91%, also England).
- Should Cian Healy feature in this match, he will earn his 134th cap for Ireland, overtaking Brian O'Driscoll (133) as their most-capped player – among props, only Australia's James Slipper has earned more caps for a single nation in men's Test rugby (142).
- Fiji's Meli Derenalagi won seven turnovers in the 2024 Pacific Nations Cup, at least three more than any other player, however, he failed to win a turnover in Fiji's first two games of this year's Autumn Nations Series, despite starting both matches.
